COVID-19 has changed life for people everywhere. People ⁽¹⁶⁾ adjusted to new norms like social distancing, ⁽¹⁷⁾ routine temperature checks and washing their hands more. Businesses around the world faced big changes too. A few companies around the world took ⁽¹⁸⁾ their response to the virus in an unexpected direction. These companies then decided to ⁽¹⁹⁾ manufacture goods or equipment that can help the fight against COVID-19.

LVMH is the biggest luxury company in the world. Back then, when the French ⁽²⁰⁾ government warned the public that hospitals in Paris might face hand sanitiser shortages, LVMH converted their perfume production lines to produce hand sanitiser.

Please note that the passage for Comprehension questions 71 to 80 in Booklet B is on the next page. You may now go on to Booklet B.

Refer to the passage below when you answer questions 71 to 80 in Booklet B.

Tobey was at the park as part of his recovery process. Recently, he had injured his right ankle during football training. After being discharged from the hospital, the doctor told him to walk for at least thirty minutes each day, so that it would be able to heal faster. Tobey had followed his doctor's instructions so far as they seemed to be working.

After walking for about thirty minutes, Tobey sat on a bench, feeling tired from all the exercise. He saw some boys playing football on the field, which was located just beside the park. He longed for the day when he could run again and chase after the football on the field. He thought about how long more his recovery would go on for.

Feeling a little down by these thoughts, Tobey took out a card which was given to him by his classmates. "I feel better every time I look at this card," Tobey thought to himself. His classmates had written their well-wishes on the card and passed it to him to cheer him up when they had visited him during his stay in the hospital. Tobey smiled to himself as he read the encouraging words thoughtfully penned by his classmates. He really appreciated the gesture.

Just then, there was a sudden gust of wind. It blew the card right out of Tobey's hands. Tobey looked on in dismay as the card sailed through the air before landing into the nearby pond. Tobey got up as fast as he could and staggered towards the pond. He looked for a stick to reach for the card, but he could find one that was long enough. By then, the card had drifted further towards the middle of the pond. In a bid to retrieve his card, Tobey decided to go into the pond. He slowly waded in, carefully ensuring that he was standing firmly before taking his next step.

Just as half of his body was submerged in the pond, he heard a voice calling him.

"Tobey! What do you think you are doing!" hollered Mr Lim, his neighbour, who happened to be at the park, walking his dog.

When he saw what Tobey was doing, he immediately went into the pond, ignoring his own safety and swam towards the card. He retrieved the card and handed it back to Tobey, who by this time had already climbed out of the pond.

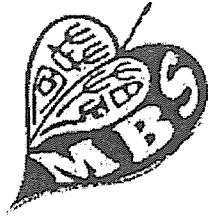

"Mr Lim, thank you so much! I don't think I could have retrieved the card without your help!" Tobey thanked Mr Lim profusely.

Even though Tobey had his card back, it was all drenched and the writing inside it was a little smudged. He decided to dry it at home to see if he could salvage it. As Tobey and Mr Lim walked home together, Tobey realised that the both of them were receiving many awkward stares from passers-by. Looking down at himself and Mr Lim, who were both drenched from head to toe, he laughed as he realised the reason why. Both continued their walk home together, completely ignoring all the people who had gathered around the pond. They were all gawking at the pair. At this point in time, both of them were completely exhausted. Mr Lim had a long day at work and was looking forward to a nice home-cooked meal after walking his dog at the park. However, he felt that something was off. He would usually be holding onto something in his hands. This time round, his hands were free. Tobey then gasped in shock.

"Wait! Where is your dog!" Tobey cried. Amidst all the chaos at the park earlier, Mr Lim had totally forgotten about his dog. In a flash, he rushed back to the park, hoping that it was still there. Tobey could not do the same as he was in no condition to run. He hobbled as fast as he could. However, he lost his balance and landed awkwardly on the ground.

"Oh no! Not again!" Tobey yelled before clutching his right ankle. He truly regretted his action.
